You need a Mayor who will lead with integrity, fairness, and vision - a steady hand to guide Council and represent all of Mandurah.

Mandurah's been home for 42 years. I live here with my partner Ange, who runs a local business, and our young twins. Like you, my family is invested in Mandurah's future. I want my children to grow up in a safe, vibrant, and connected community.

Before serving full-time on council, I began my working life as an underground miner, then built a career as an engineer and project manager. I've worked in tough environments across WA, PNG, Indonesia, and Kazakhstan. Leading diverse teams on demanding and high-risk projects taught me to balance budgets, control costs, improve systems, and deliver results under pressure - skills and experience I now use to make sure council decisions are practical, accountable, and firmly focused on core responsibilities.

Over the past four years, I've delivered on what I promised - asking thorough questions, giving voice to the community, and holding decision-makers accountable. I've opposed rate rises and long-term financial plans that locked in higher costs for households and small businesses - instead, arguing for rate freezes and for Council to live within its means.

As Mayor, I'll lead with the same independence and conviction, setting the standard for transparency, efficiency, and fairness. My approach is back-to-basics: cutting waste, focusing on core responsibilities, and ensuring you get a fair return for the rates you pay. I remain committed to supporting local sporting clubs, community groups, and environmental initiatives that make Mandurah strong and connected. Protecting what we value is central to my leadership.

Mandurah is an amazing place, blessed with a unique environment. I'll continue to stand up when it matters, protect what makes our home special and ensure Council serves you.

Together, we can build a Council you can trust - one that delivers for you, your family, and our community.
