You need an independent councillor who listens, fights for your community, and puts Mandurah first.

I've called Mandurah home for 42 years. I live in Town Ward with my partner Ange, who owns and runs a local business, and our young twins. Like you, my family is invested in Mandurah's future. I want my children to grow up in a safe, vibrant, and connected community.

Before serving full-time on council since 2021, I began my working life as an underground miner, then built a career largely as an engineer and project manager. I've worked in some of the most challenging environments across WA, PNG, Indonesia, and Kazakhstan. Leading diverse teams on demanding and high-risk projects taught me to balance budgets, control costs, improve systems, and deliver results under pressure - the same skills and experience I now use to make sure council decisions are practical, accountable, and firmly focused on core responsibilities.

Over the past four years, I've delivered on what I promised - asking thorough questions, giving voice to the community, and holding decision-makers accountable. I've opposed rate rises and long-term financial plans that locked in higher costs for households and small businesses, instead arguing and voting for rate freezes and for council to live within its means.

You deserve integrity and transparency in every decision, and services that deliver real value. My approach is back-to-basics: cutting waste, focusing on core responsibilities, and ensuring every dollar is spent wisely so you get a fair return for the rates you pay.

I remain committed to supporting local sporting clubs, community groups, and environmental initiatives that make Mandurah strong and connected.

Mandurah is an amazing place, blessed with a unique environment. I'll continue to stand up when it matters and protect what makes our home special.

Together, we can build a council you can trust - working for you, your family, and our community.
