

Additional Information

I'm a proud husband and father of four kids 10 and under, with deep family roots in Mandurah. My family has seen this community grow from a small farming town into a city of over 100,000 people, and I want to ensure it remains a place we are proud to live, work, and raise families.

I work with Western Power, attending faults to restore and maintain power. This role has given me a strong appreciation for reliability, safety, and the importance of being there when the community needs you most.

Outside of work and family life, I'm passionate about cricket, football, golf, fishing, and all the water-based activities that make Mandurah such a special place. Whether its time on the estuary, at our beaches, or taking the kids fishing, I know how much our natural environment shapes our lifestyle. Protecting and enhancing these opportunities is central to my vision for Mandurah's future.

Sport is also a cornerstone of community life, and I want to see us continue building our sporting culture while keeping it affordable for families. Strong grassroots clubs and accessible facilities bring people together, strengthen our youth, and create healthier, more connected communities.

As a councillor, my priorities are clear:

Protect Mandurah's culture and character while keeping it affordable for families.

Encourage private investment to fund improvements responsibly.

Create a safe, family-friendly environment for all ages.

Address homelessness with compassionate, practical solutions.

Preserve waterways and outdoor lifestyle for fishing, boating, and recreation.

Times are changing with technology, for better or worse. I believe I'm best placed to help our community navigate these changes without losing what makes Mandurah's iconic lifestyle, our culture, and our sense of belonging.

Mandurah is more than just a place to live it is a community built on families, lifestyle, and opportunity. I want to ensure it remains vibrant, welcoming, and affordable for everyone
